Jackson Carr. Wolf shifter. Bounty hunter.

Jackson had a pretty good life. He hunted and chased people down and got paid for doing it! Admittedly life wasn't perfect. He still smoked too much, and jobs didn't come through regularly enough for his liking, and there was that thing about him never being allowed back to his pack for being too violent... but otherwise things were good. So why the hell did he feel so damn restless all of a sudden? Maybe it had something to do with his latest job, just looking at the picture of the cute little fox shifter set his wolf prancing around like a puppy.

Carly Columbo. Fox shifter. On the run.

Up until a few weeks ago life had been straight forward. Go to work, come home, go to bar, get tipsy, complain about lack of sex life and then go home to bed. Repeat. It had been a little monotonous, and she had constantly wished for a little excitement to shake things up but she hadn't really imagined that would entail finding herself waking up next to her dead boss and arrested for his murder! That was just a bit too exciting for her...

Now, out on bail she's trying to figure out what the heck is going on whilst dodging a maddeningly sexy bounty hunter who wants nothing more than to throw her into a set of handcuffs... and not in a good way.

Will Carly be able to convince Jackson of her innocence before he drags her back to jail kicking and screaming? Is Carly really just another job to him, or does Jackson have his own reasons for not sending her back to jail?

Please note this novella is approximately 41,700 words in length (think of it as a novel-lite, it's like the diet version of a real novel!)

But I do advise caution! It does contain swearing (there's a lot of use of the f word!), as well as scenes of a sexual nature with m/f interaction intended for mature readers.
